Villa Clara, a historical centenarian city right in the center of the island with warm beaches, and an endemic flora and fauna, unique attractions that gives to the visitor an authentic Cuban flavor.

Welcome to Villa Clara
Mainly a flat territory, decorated with the Guamuhaya mountain massif, it covers 8,412 square kilometers.

Here, you will have the chance to visit exclusive places such as San Juan de Los Remedios the eighth village founded in the 16th century; to sail the Hanabanilla lake waters, ideal for nature lovers, or to walk along the city of Santa Clara, where Che Guevara is remembered the most.

Three jewels of the Northern cays of the territory, attached to each other by a causeway, await the visitor with 17 kilometers of beaches in Las Brujas, Ensenachos and Santa María.

Excellent hotels located in urban and natural sceneries will allow you to enjoy this seductive tourist destination, where culture, roots, and identity mix to please the most demanding tastes.
THREE JEWEL

Las Brujas, Ensenachos y Cayo Santa María
Las Brujas, Ensenachos, and Santa María cays stand out among the capricious rosary of islets in the north of Villa Clara. It’s a paradise with incredible crystalline waters and a highly endemic flora and fauna.
They are linked to the village of Caibarién by a 48-kilometer causeway, which was awarded with the Alcantara Ibero-American International Prize, due to the harmonious combination of nature and engineering work in an area declared Biosphere Reserve.

Las Brujas is the first cay coming from mainland, with a marvelous two-kilometer-long beach, and boasts one the most beautiful coral reefs nationwide. The Marina Gaviota Las Brujas and a diving center with certified instructors by the ACUC International turn this resort into an ideal spot for water sports. It has also an airport for small and middle size aircrafts.
Los Ensenachos is the smallest cay (about 2 square kilometers). It has the best beaches (Los Ensenachos and El Mégano), with blue-greenish waters. Here you will be able to enjoy an almost absolute tranquility, surrounded by a virgin environment. The Hotel Occidental Royal Hideaway Ensenachos Resort & Spa gives to this resort a hallmark of exclusivity.
Their seabeds harbor twenty-four dive sites, which are ideal for underwater photography. The Marina Gaviota and its diving center offer excellent boat sailings with long tours in catamaran and immersions guided by professional divers.

Santa María It’s the largest cay and the last one crossing the Buenavista bay waters, and it’s also known as “La Rosa Blanca de los Jardines del Rey” (Jardines del Rey White Rose). Among its beaches stand out Perla Blanca, Las Caletas, Cañón, and Cuatro Punta, with stacks that enhance its beauty.
For a pleasant stay, full of comfort and a wide range of services and facilities, the resort has a hotel complex with 7,730 rooms.
Founded in 1689, the capital of Villa Clara treasures museums, old churches, and parks full of history and culture. It has witnessed three important battles and its children’s bravery in the liberation wars, the last of them under the command of the notable fighter Ernesto “Che” Guevara.
Several places of this city remind us the “Guerrillero Heroico” (the heroic guerrilla), hence it is also called the “city of Che”. It has a favorable geographical situation at the right center of the country, 267 kilometers from Havana, 74 from Cienfuegos, 207 from Varadero, and only 88 from Trinidad, World Heritage.
In this monument, Santa Clara guards zealously Che Guevara’s and his internationalist comrades’ remains, all of them fallen in combat or killed in Bolivia.

The Square, the Tribune, the Museum, and the Che Memorial were founded on December 28th, 1988, on the occasion of the 30th Anniversary of Santa Clara Battle led by Ernesto Che Guevara. The whole complex was designed by the architect Jorge Cao Campos and the sculptor José de Lázaro Bencomo (Delarra). The Che’s bronze statue rises up on a 16-meter-high pedestal (10 of them visible, stone-covered) and 6 meters of green marble on the base. The statue itself is 6.80 meters high and weighs 20 tons.

On October 7th, 2009, was inaugurated the mausoleum Frente de Las Villas, which honors and guards the remains of the combatants that fought as members of the Front of Las Villas, created in the Escambray, on October 16th, 1958, a mixed of the Column No. 8 Ciro Redondo, those of the Directorio Revolucionario (revolutionary directory), and the Movimiento 26 de Julio led by Víctor Bordón.

The complex offers varied services such as videos, scientific events, advice to searchers, political and cultural activities, plastic arts exhibitions, gatherings, talks, and lectures. This Museum-Memorial opens its doors from Tuesday to Sunday [9:30 am-4:00 pm], guides included, and the Mausoleum Frente de Las Villas, from 9:30 am to 4:00 pm. Free visits up to 8:00 pm.
ARMOURED TRAIN
The monument-museum reminds the armored train derailed by troops headed by Che, on December 29th, 1958.

The artistic conception of the monument belongs to José Delarra, who tried to represent, through five sculptural elements, the different actions that took place at that time.

The monument also includes four original wagons, photos, maps, sketches of the guerrilla positions, and an old bulldozer, which was useful in combat.
This park bears Leoncio Vidal Caro’s name, a notable Cuban fighter for the independence. When the village was founded in the 15th century, they decided to keep a space to join together the most important Spanish military and government institutions. So, this place was first known as Plaza de Armas. Over the years, the park has been the venue for several celebrations such as religious worships, trades, official activities, public parades, demonstrations, among others. Today the Vidal Park, declared National Monument, is the center of Santa Clara social and cultural life. The eclectic style prevails with some neoclassical style features. Nevertheless, the Santa Clara Libre hotel is a modern style building and the highest one in the city.
THE ARBOR

It was built in 1911 at the place chosen as center for the total restoration of the park in the first half of the 19th century. It remains a reserved space for the municipal band and favorite place to enjoy the Cuban danzón (national dance) every night.
Other attractions

FOUNTAIN OF THE BOY WITH THE UNFORTUNATE BOOT

It symbolizes the "drummer boys" who plays their instruments together with the fighters while the US Civil War. This sculpture is a bronze reconstruction of José Delarra inspired after the 1925 original, which was situated on this fountain to celebrate the 300th anniversary of the city foundation in 1989.

MARTA ABRÉU STATUE

Unveiled in 1924 in honor to this illustrious and charitable woman, this statue was paid with funds collected by the villagers and located where the bell tower of the Major Church previously stood up, straight to the Arbor and the Obelisk.

THE OBELISK

The villa first monument, it was inaugurated in 1886 to perpetuate the illustrious priests Juan Martín Conyedo and Francisco Hurtado de Mendoza.
The Nuestra Señora del Carmen church is the first Santa Clara symbol. One of the village founders, Juan Martín de Conyedo, opened this institution on July 16th, 1744, as an offering to the virgin and to celebrate the village foundation a day before. Some years later, a tamarind tree was planted in the south side of the church and all the villagers used to revere it.

In 1952, the Monument to the eighteen founding families was inaugurated, which are represented by eighteen columns bordering the tamarind tree. In 1991, the park was declared National Monument.

The tamarind tree is today one of our identity symbols, a legendary tree from which a newer tradition came up: “the planting of a tamarind tree”, held every July 15th to celebrate the villa foundation.
Declared National Monument in 1982, it is one of the neoclassical style trilogy theaters built in the second half of the 19th century in Cuba and currently preserved as architectural jewels.

Its investment rose up to 140,000 gold pesos and its project came up in 1883. Its construction was finished two years later under the supervision of the architect Herminio C. Leyva, from Holguín, another important Cuban city, in the place where formerly stood up La Candelaria chapel, across the Plaza de Armas (a square) of Santa Clara.

Prestigious Spanish and Cuban artist have stamped their mark on the refined decoration, in which the values of national and universal cultures are recognized.
A domestic building dated back from the second half of the 18th century, it’s considered the oldest one in the site. Its rooms, and the surrounding park and portal, keep the same initial structure.

Built in the early 20th century, it was formerly the government seat and where the Major General Máximo Gómez addressed to Santa Clara inhabitants in 1899 while his stay in the region, and so did Fidel Castro in 1959. It was also the first place of the posthumous homage to Che and his comrades when their remains arrived at Santa Clara.
Created as a simple meeting premises for bohemian friends and intellectual people in 1984, El Mejunje is now a multipurpose and a convention-free cultural center, located at the right heart of the city. Settled on an ancient hotel ruins, its sui generis magic consists in the spanning metamorphosis: from disc music to the Cuban trova; from bolero to rock; from jazz to impression.

Here, the visitor can find an everyday varied cultural planning. There’s a steady theater group led by its creator, actor, and culture promoter Ramón Silveiro. A theater hall, a café, and an art gallery complete this cultural oasis where the visitor will have a good time.
Health and leisure are in perfect harmony in the Elguea Thermal Center, considered one of the most important in Latin America. Its hotel, which bears the same name, is a modernly equipped building where beauty cares and quality of life improvement services are offered, by using medicinal-mineral waters and mud-therapy.

Its medicinal-mineral waters are a real source of health, due to their chemical composition.
It’s the only intra-mountain lake in Cuba, and is located in a large valley in the middle of Guamuhaya mountain massif. Its name is an aboriginal word meaning “little golden basket”.

Ideal for practicing specialized photography, sport fishing, hiking, bird watching, enjoying the great variety of endemic plants, among others, this paradisiac place was declared Natural Protected Landscape.

Its offers are, among others, El Nicho hiking, through the mountains, falls, and Hanabanilla River, a real wonder for tourists.

The Hanabanilla Hotel, with 125 rooms, gives you the opportunity to enjoy these unique natural attractions.
ANILLA
Just a half hour way from Santa Clara, the eighth villa founded by Spaniards, in 1515, seems to be stuck in the time. San Juan de los Remedios treasures a well-preserved historical center, which has its starting point at the today José Martí square, formerly known as Parochial Square and Isabel II.

It’s the only village with two churches in Cuba: Nuestra Señora del Buen Viaje and the Major Parochial Church.
More than 500 years of history

Building dating back those times are conserved, like the house of the Alférez Real and Las Arcadas. Wide halls, wrought iron grilles, and big eaves on singular wood corbels which protect the travelers from the sun are abundant.
San Juan de los Remedios is popularly known for its incomparable Parrandas, a legendary cultural event that takes place every December 24th since 1820.

Because of its antiquity, historical trajectory, unalterable beauty and above all for its significance for the remediano people and for Cuba, they have been declared as a national holiday.

The parrandas face the inhabitants of the neighborhoods of Carmen and San Salvador, with the Gavilán and the Gallo as emblems. A whole year will keep secret the reasons.
for their jobs squares and secretly design their floats and lanterns to surprise each other on the day of opening and win the favor of the remedianos.

Their neighbors then become fraternal contenders and the flags of both sides are raised in front of the cortege and accompanying the congas.

A tradition so ingrained could not stop having its Museum, where they are treasured with zeal and love a graphic and physical representation of all the party elements.

The festivities attract hundreds of Cubans and foreigners each year for the sight of their floats, the unmistakable sound of the trumpet and the sweeping pace of changüí, which under the fireworks adorn a city that does not sleep.
It’s one of the most significant churches in Cuba. Its currently tower, of neoclassical style, was erected from 1848 to 1858 by the French architect Louis Rolland.

The temple reaches out its distinguished beauty in the 18th century, when the rich landowner Eutimio Falla Bonet paid its definitive restoration. The altarpiece and its golden lamination, which extend to the lateral altars, together with the catholic pictures and the decorated gabled roofs, constitute its main attractions.
The Parque Martí in Remedios is the center of this legendary town. All urban constructions in the town began in this place. It hosts buildings recalling those times, such as the houses of the Alférez Real, the Rojas family, the Lobatón family, Pangua, among others. The silhouettes of the bell towers at the San Juan Bautista Major Parochial Church and the Buen Viaje Church stand out in this square. Both churches are placed on both sides of the square, an exceptional case in the country.

Remedios hosts the house-museum where the composer and judge Alejandro García Caturla was born. Violins, scores, musical instruments and photos, as well as all his belongings, are found in this museum in such a careful and preserved way that they seem as not part of the memories but of the life itself.

Caturla was awarded in Cuba, France and Spain and known in the western hemisphere for his elegance in the piano and expertise in the saxophone, the clarinet, the percussion, the violin and the viola. His most important works are Tres danzas cubanas, for a symphonic orchestra, and Obertura cubana.

The public telephone system facilitates calls using ATM cards, which are sold in hotels, information offices (infotur), and other tourist centers for different prices depending on the client’s funds. The hotels also offer international and national calls from reception desk or even from the rooms, with no operator’s service.

INTERNATIONAL CALLS
If you want to call from Cuba abroad you should dial 119 [Cuba out-number], next the other country phone code, and then the intended number.

CALLS TO CUBA
To call to Cuba you should dial your country out-number, next 53 [Cuba phone code], then the province code, and finally the intended number.

CALLS TO THE PROVINCES (IN CUBA)
The proceeding here is simple: from Villa Clara, you should dial 01, next the other province code, and then the intended number. To call to Havana you should only dial 07 and then the intended number.
